Re: Feeding Ravens on the Fort Bragg Coast Trails and City Parks

Dear Ms. Miller,

I give my 100% support to the letter Tim Bray, President of the Mendocino Coast Audubon Society, wrote you about feeding wildlife, specifically Ravens and ground squirrels, on our city coastal trails and in our city parks.

On the Fort Bragg City Trails I have seen people feeding Ravens and ground squirrels. These wild animals have become tame and have proliferated. Ravens raid the nests of smaller and vulnerable birds, endangering their survival as a species. Ground Squirrels, which are rodents, carry diseases that can be transmitted to humans.

Please relay this letter of support on the Mendocino Coast Audubon Society's position about the feeding of wildlife on Fort Bragg Coast Trails and City Parks to the city's Public Safety Committee and the City Council.

Thank you.

Sincerely, Marcy Snyder
