Update on Ad Hoc Culture and Education Committee

Ad Hoc Committee on Culture and Education

CITY OF FORT BRAGG

This committee stems from recommendations made by the Citizens' Commission that met for over 18 months during 2020 and 2021.

A number of those recommendations oriented around how our city government, the school district, the local tribal government, and the indigenous people of our area could move forward in partnership together. The idea would be for our collaboration to result in educational initiatives, policies or agreements, and especially ongoing communication and consultation.

That effort has been our committee's focus so far.

Fort Bragg Army Post Building Mendocino Indian Reservation

The building in front of you is the only remaining structure from the Fort Bragg Army Post, which was part of the Mendocino Indian Reservation. On March 3, 1853 (10 Stat.238), Congress authorized five military reservations throughout California. This served as a catalyst to clear the land for non-Indian settlement and land speculation. Here, the United States War Department established Mendocino Reservation and Fort Bragg.

Indian people from Marin County to the Oregon border, over to Modoc County and down through to the Sacramento Valley, would be herded to this place. Many of the able-bodied would return to their homelands. Some of the displaced married into Northern Pomo and Coast Yuki families. Some stayed under duress because their villages no longer existed or their families' lines were extinguished by one of the many renegade militias paid to hunt Indians.

Land speculators would eventually convince the California legislature to pass Joint Resolution 43, "that Mendocino Indian Reservation be abandoned, and the lands be opened for pre-emption." Subsequently, the native people here were force-marched 60 miles inland to the Round Valley Reservation. Those who risked life and limb to remain or return were regarded as squatters on their own land.

Our people, called Pomo by ethnographers, are indigenous to this land. The landscape on which you stand contains thousands of years of memories. Please respect the generations of people that call this place home and the ancestral fabric of this land. We are alive; we are still here.

After the closure of the Mendocino Reservation, and forced Indian removal to Round Valley, many former soldiers stationed at Fort Bragg would ultimately be the ones gaining title to this coastal homeland.

To own the plot they wanted, the soldiers would only need two witnesses stating there were no competing interests.

Land Acknowledgement and Commitments

The City of Fort Bragg acknowledges that the land on which we stand today is the unceded traditional territory of the local indigenous people past and present. We acknowledge the critical importance of traditional Pomo methods of preservation of our land, waters, and sky. We recognize the sovereignty of the Pomo People, who are the original stewards of this land. We value, and seek to support, the many ways in which the Pomo People are working to preserve and revitalize Pomo culture, such as oral histories, dances, songs, regalia, basketry, and the Northern Pomo language.

We resolve to:

- Consult with the governing body of the Sherwood Valley Band of Pomo Indians, as well as other tribal communities, on initiatives, issues, or items of concern.
- Raise visibility and public awareness of the history and contemporary presence of the native population of our area.
- Collaborate with local indigenous people and schools, as well as State and Regional partners, to enhance education on the history and contemporary lifeways of local indigenous people.
